On July 27, 1984, Mr. George Oliver and I met with Messrs. Bill Webster and Tony Gentile of American Resources to discuss their letter dated July 6, 1984.

American Resources wants to buy the American Fly Ash Facility at Gary Development Landfill in Gary, and utilize it to solidify non-hazardous waste with lime and fly ash. We told them that since they wanted to go full scale as opposed to experimental as originally approved, we would need more information on types of wastes before and after analysis and better documentation on previous experience.

I told them I would envision having American Fly Ash's permit transferred to them and then amended based on the information discussed above. I told them I would prefer they give us a proposal for two or three waste streams initially, and provided they worked out, we could then consider additional streams on a case-by-case basis.

Mr. Webster indicated some concern with utilizing Gary Developments sump water and wanted to know if it could be considered a hazardous waste since the site had accepted listed hazardous waste, and the sump water potentially contained leachate from the site. We indicated his reasoning was sound and that to protect themselves, they should probably find another source of process water.
